

Using and Evaluating Material from Electronic Databases

This curriculum is supported with material from the VVMF Website. The following web site offers guidelines in citing and evaluating material from electronic sources:

- Citing Electronic Information in History Papers by Maurice Crouse, Department of History, The University of Memphis, <http://history.memphis.edu/mcrouse/elcite.html>

The National Archives offers Document Analysis Worksheets free of charge for your students to use. You may obtain them by visiting the following URL:

- <http://www.archives.gov/education/lessons/worksheets/>

OR

- Written Document: <http://www.archives.gov/education/lessons/worksheets/document.html>
- Photograph: <http://www.archives.gov/education/lessons/worksheets/photo.html>
- Cartoon: <http://www.archives.gov/education/lessons/worksheets/cartoon.html>
- Poster: <http://www.archives.gov/education/lessons/worksheets/poster.html>
- Map: <http://www.archives.gov/education/lessons/worksheets/map.html>
- Artifact: <http://www.archives.gov/education/lessons/worksheets/artifact.html>
- Motion Picture: <http://www.archives.gov/education/lessons/worksheets/movie.html>
- Sound Recording: <http://www.archives.gov/education/lessons/worksheets/sound.html>